

Thriving as a New Leader

Making the transition into the role of a new leader can be overwhelming if unequipped with the right skills and know-how to achieve success. Many new leaders are set-up for failure as a result of not receiving the training and coaching required for a smooth transition to their new role, resulting in poor leadership which leads to poor team and organizational results, low engagement, higher levels of conflict and stress and higher levels of turnover.

This workshop provides you with a road-map to becoming an effective leader and gives you strategies and tools for avoiding the pot-holes that inevitably appear along the way.

You will learn:

- How to use the First 30 Days to Success road map.
- The key practices every leader must use to achieve success.
- Their leadership profile and understanding of their strengths and weaknesses.
- How to build respect and establish themselves as a leader.
- What “people management” means and how to make it a priority.
- How to build accountability.
- How to set and manage expectations.
- How to provide constructive feedback.
